

Western North Dakota Regional

by Jacquie Biloff

The Western North Dakota Regional, "The Master's Workshop", was held at the Dickinson Adventist Church April 9th. Anne Wham surprised the Sabbath School with a trying-on of different hats and asking if they matched her outfit. A "What Shall I Wear?" skit was presented by Medgy Chapman, Janna Quaile and Angela Peoples depicting the gracious offer of Jesus' robe of righteousness to each of His needy people. Charlotte Messer sang "How Beautiful" for special music and a panel of Linda Johnson, Pastor Donovan Kack, Llewlynn Alexenko and Jacquie Biloff discussed the Sabbath School lesson "From Exalted to Cast Down". Dakota Adventist Academy provided special music for the after-service with a message of "Blind Justice" presented by Elder Neil Biloff.

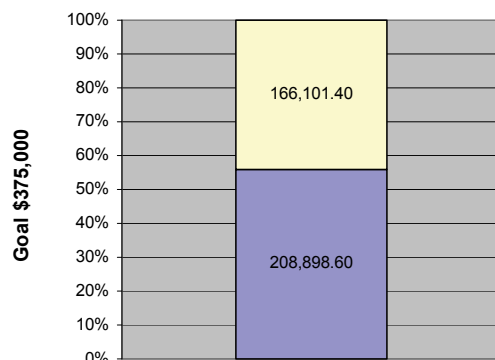

The Dickinson and surrounding Adventist Churches furnished a lovely meal for the guests and an afternoon service immediately following the fellowship meal featured the Dakota Adventist Academy choir, DAK and band. Leonard Quaile, the academy's principal and Rachael Boyd, the development director, thanked all those who so generously give to support the academy and its programs. A question and answer time was provided by the conference president Neil Biloff.

Hazen Art Show Showcases DAA Students

by Gary Way

On the snowy last weekend of April, a number of art pieces from Dakota Adventist Academy were on display at the Hazen Art Show. The pieces included a number of linoleum and wood block prints, oil and acrylic paintings, and a graphite drawing. The show was well represented from two local high schools in addition to DAA for over one hundred entries. Art work from DAA represented second through fourth year art students and was an overview of what students do in art at DAA. Cash prizes from local businesses, ribbons, and other awards were available. Of the ten DAA students who entered, three students were awarded prizes. Sophomore Jill Donald won $10 from Hazen Motors for her two color linoleum print of an argyle sweater clad torso titled Argyle. Senior Chul Jun Jang received a third place ribbon and $5 and a business award from the American Legion of $25 for his precisely executed oil Still Life. Senior Yoon Hee Min was awarded twice. Her oil painting titled Dolphin received notice by the First Security Bank with $15, and her graphite portrait was recognized with the Deloris Amsden Honorary Award which included $50. Photo by Rachael Boyd

Huron Church Outreach

by Belinda Hofer

For the past six years, the Huron Adventist Church has been reaching out to the community with a yearly banquet. Each year a different theme is presented. One year was a western theme, another year – Italian, and yet another, “The 50’s”.

The church started out having the banquets in February around Valentines Day, but due to the cold weather, have more recently moved them into March. The banquet gives church members a reason to invite friends from the community to come and enjoy a meal and fellowship. The Huron Adventist Church wants the community to feel comfortable coming to different events at the church so when a health seminar or evangelistic meeting is held, they will feel comfortable coming to them as well.

This year’s banquet theme was “Mexican Fiesta.” A vegetarian Mexican meal was served followed by some fun and games. About half in attendance were from the Huron community. Pastor Abel Rios and his wife, Jessica, joined the church for the banquet. In fact, Jessica made the sopapillas as dessert for everyone. Photos by Belinda Hofer

Fundraiser Auction Anything But Silent

by Jen Erickson

The rapid voice of Grand Forks’ Pastor Mike Temple rose above the shouts of bids at an auction to benefit church member Zach Heilig. Last fall Zach was afflicted with a very fast growing cancer in his eye, which had to be removed. The funds raised will help him and wife Danita with medical expenses and the cost of a replacement eye.

Members donated handcrafted items, antiques, baked goods, and merchandise from their companies. In addition, the Grand Forks Bison Pathfinder Club went into the community soliciting donations and served as assistants at the auction. Pastor Temple pressed his skills as an auctioneer into service and the crowd was able to raise a total of $3,359.00. That amount was almost doubled with matching funds and personal donations.

Zach & Danita traveled to doctor appointments in the last few days and he was fitted with a new eye already!
